Background

As required by SR III.2 approximately eighteen months prior to the conclusion of the President’s term, in the Winter of 2023, the Executive Committee of the Board of Governors established an Advisory Committee comprising external members, staff, faculty and student members of the Board along with faculty & student senators to conduct a review of the presidency and develop an updated presidential mandate for 2024-2029.

Approach

The committee conducted comprehensive internal and external stakeholder outreach to determine priorities, while building on existing Board of Governors Strategic Directions (2022-2026/27), Trent’s Academic Guiding Principles 2022-2027, and Trent’s Strategic Research Priorities overarching theme of healthy and sustainable environments and communities.

Outcome

Over a two-month period, substantial stakeholder feedback was generated through an online survey, group sessions, and one-on-one meetings held by various Committee members. The Committee has reviewed the information in depth both individually and as a group, and presents the following for consideration.

The New Mandate 2024-2029

Based on this input and the Board of Governors Strategic Directions (2022-2025/26), the key themes of the new mandate are Proactive & Strategic Leadership, Stewardship, and Renewal. The committee identified several areas of focus within these overarching themes:

It is to be stressed that none of these areas of focus stand alone and they are NOT presented in order of importance. They are necessarily interdependent and have many crossover items. The mandate is intended to be a living document to be reviewed by the Board Executive Committee and the Board annually to establish priorities, a work plan and to measure outcomes.

Academic and Research Excellence

- The President will support academic and research excellence that strengthens academic programs; will continue the promotion of high-quality research while prioritizing student engagement with research at both the graduate and undergraduate levels; will support the increasingly important role graduate studies plays at Trent, both in terms of research and teaching.

Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion

- Given the continued need to advance social justice, the President will champion equity, diversity, and inclusion as an important value, and will help create a welcoming, supportive, and culturally relevant environment that enriches the learning, research, and work of all.

Commitment to Truth and Reconciliation Through Leadership in Indigenous Education

- Trent University will continue to strengthen its leadership in Indigenous education, advancing the TRC Calls to Action, and incorporating Indigenous voices, values and knowledge in all aspects of our work. The President will lead Trent to deepen its relationships with Indigenous leaders, Elders, and the local Indigenous communities, and ensure Trent remains a place of dignity and respect for Indigenous peoples.

Environmental Sustainability

- The President will help establish tangible and quantifiable goals for environmental sustainability, and will accelerate the implementation of a systematic institutional approach to Trent decision-making, policies, and practices in pursuit of those goals.

Collegial Governance

- The President will respect the governance structures of the University, and consult and communicate in the spirit of accountability and transparency.

LEADERSHIP

The President is accountable to the Board of Governors and provides operational leadership for all aspects of University affairs, both internal and external, to ensure the performance, societal contribution, and vitality of the institution. Working with many different stakeholders the President is also the main spokesperson and face of the University. The President is accountable for the University’s reputation, partnerships, academic and Senior Administration, resources, the student experience and academic programming.

In today’s climate, the President and leadership team must engage in a multi-stakeholder partnership that includes administration, community, students, faculty, staff, and alumni operating in an environment of transparency and openness.

The ideal leader will exhibit and have demonstrated excellence in:

• Collaborative Consultation with Strategic Decision Making and Action
• Advocacy
• Communication
• Financial Acumen
• Strategic Innovation
• Relationship Building
